"The Rivals"

Another performance that will remain happily in the memory of those who witnessed it was given at the Academy of Music last night, when Annie Russell and her Old English Councily Company presented Sheridan's unaying comedy, "The Rivals."

The most callous theatre-goer could rave through columns of ecstatic approciation of Miss Russell's delicious conception and execution of the part of Lydia Languish; of Miss Paget's Mrs. Malaprop, a characterization which ho other woman of our stage could even approach for delicacy, for unctuous humor, and for unerring appreciation of the value of little things; of Mr. Yorke's quiet and unstressed comedy, and of—oh! of the whole refreshing, rare and artistic thing, play and performance.

But only a bandful of playsgoers was and performance.
But only a handful of play-goers was there to enjoy it; they saw it for themselves, and those who remained away will not be interested.
